Soft Corn Requires Special Attention

Several Methods Given For Profitable Feeding

Saving soft corn will be a problem facing many farmers this year. Much of the crop went in so late that frost became a factor in maturity, as wellas in winter handling of the corn.

Next to chopping and feeding green, one of the best ways to get full value from soft corn is to put immature crops in the silo or pasture them off with cattle, hogs or sheep, Capper's Farmer points out.

Another method used by many growers in the last big soft corn year, 1945, was to build emergency cribs five to six feet wide. The farmers set two rows of poles in the ground, wired the tops together to keep the cribs from spreading, and fastened woven wire or slat cribbing on the inside of the posts. These cribs built in east and west directions, took best advantage of prevailing winds.

Farmers in many northern areas, where corn is likely to be caught by frost before it is mature, regularly cut up large quantities and cure it as fodder. Ears later are husked by hand or with a shredder.

Most hybrid corns are stiff stalked and have a good root system. They will stand with few fallen ears well into the winter. Since ears will dry with less spoilage on a standing stalk, many farmers prefer to let hogs, cattle or sheep harvest the crop.

KNOW YOUR BREED
Morgan Horse
By W. J. DRYDEN

Justin Morgan was the fountainhead of the first great family of American horses. The Morgan strain secured its name from the man who bred the original Morgan horse and owned him until late in 1795.

For 150 years Americans have been proud to claim Morgan blood in their horses. It implied energy, courage, bottom and excellent saddle horse. The breed is being perpetuated at the United States Morgan horse farm, Middlebury, Vt. In height it ranges from 14.2 hands to 15.2 hands, with 15 hands being given preference.

Herds and Flocks

Fall pigs should be kept gaining from the start. If they stop gaining it is harder to get them started again, and it takes more feed. Don't let them lose their milk fat.

Keep weeds cut under your electric fence to prevent grounding. Set the posts at an angle and you can keep the weeds cut with the mowing machine.

Flush ewes before the breeding season—that is, feed them generously so they will be gaining at breeding time. Changing from scant to good pasture, or feeding some grain, will put the ewes in better condition. Flushing results in more certain breeding.

Cows due to freshen in late fall should be dried off and given eight weeks of vacation to get ready for the blessed event. During this rest period, feed a fitting ration to keep the cow in good flesh and help develop the calf.

Some New Weed Killers Give Excellent Results

New weed killers to supplement 2,4-D are appearing with good reports. Quack grass and crab grass are two weed pests which 2,4-D does not control. IPC was developed in England during the war and now is giving good results in the control of quack grass, stolons and seedings, in tests conducted by the U. S. department of agriculture. It is harmless to persons and to some broadleaf plants.

Thirsty Crops Tests

Thirsty crops will have more water on soils with plenty of organic matter. Such soils will soak up more water faster than those low in organic matter. Less water will run off; more will be held for gradual release to the crops as they need it. Two of the Morrow plots used for soil fertility research at University of Illinois were compared for organic matter content and their ability to soak up and hold water.

Soil management and crop rotation made the difference between the two. Increasing the organic matter by 20 tons boosted the amount of water the soil would hold by 200 tons. In addition, tests showed that water needed only half the time to soak through a thin layer of the loose soil rich in organic matter than it needed for the same soil with only 20 tons of organic matter per acre. Using deep-rooted legumes in rotation with lime, phosphorus and potash, as needed for their production, will put organic matter deep into the soil.

World Wheat Stocks Reach Lowest Level

Situation May Have No Effect on Consumer Prices.

WASHINGTON. — The amount of wheat the principal exporting nations were able to save from last year's crop was the smallest in eight years, according to the agriculture department.

Its report, compiled by the department's foreign crops and markets division, raised the possibility that deficit nations may have to scrape along this year with even less wheat than they had expected from this and other exporting countries.

The situation probably also will have an effect on American consumer prices.

If world competition for wheat drives grain prices higher it will be reflected in higher domestic retail prices for meat, poultry and dairy products.

The department said wheat stocks in the four main producing countries on July 1—start of the new crop year—were only 379 million bushels. This is eight million bushels below 1946 and the smallest July 1 stocks since 1938.

In addition to the United States, the world's major wheat-exporting countries are Canada, Australia and Argentina.

Total world grain reserves on July 1 were estimated by the department at 49,383,000 short tons, an increase of some 20 per cent over the previous year.

This was due almost entirely to a sharp rise in world corn reserves, principally in the United States.

The world corn carryover was estimated at 977 million bushels, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over 1946.

The increase in the American carryover since has been counterbalanced by hot, dry weather in the corn belt, which has cut this year's corn crop several hundred million bushels.

Although this country had a record-breaking wheat harvest of 1,427,000,000 bushels, officials have all but given up hope of meeting their original export goals because of the disastrous corn failure.

Polio Vaccine Is Tested On Rats; Success Is Told

WASHINGTON — Development of an infantile paralysis vaccine said to be capable of producing "a high degree of immunity" in a certain type of rats was described in the technical journal Science.

The report, describing the work of four Stanford university researchers, contained no statement as to any significance of the studies with relation to the disease in humans.

The vaccine was prepared with a strain of infantile paralysis virus experimentally developed in the cotton rat. After vaccination, 24 rats were exposed to doses of active virus. Only one of the 24 vaccinated rats developed polio—and it recovered. In contrast, among a similar number of unvaccinated rats used as "controls," 83 per cent developed the disease. Three weeks later, the original 24 vaccinated rats were given another dose of active virus 10 times stronger than the original one. Only 33 per cent showed signs of polio. On the other hand, 92 per cent of a group of "control" rats developed the disease. Hubert S. Lorin, C. E. Schwerdt, Nancy Lawrence and Jane Collier Anderson conducted the research.
